

Standards Committee Unable To Place Blame For SGA Election Fraud

Rules Established For Government Of Future Elections

Because of conflicting testimony and the inadvertent destruction of the questionable ballots, the Student Standards committee found it impossible last week to fix personal responsibility for the alleged fraud in the recent SGA election, but declared "There were gross irregularities in the voting at the engineering college."

Acting at the request of the Student Legislature, the committee met Wednesday to hear testimony, and reached a decision in the matter on Thursday of last week, laying down a set of rules to be observed in future elections and stressing the fact that these elections must be taken more seriously, if they are to continue a part of campus student government.

Election Rules
In order to insure against a recurrence of a situation which has thrown a blight on SGA and on the University as a whole, the Student Standards committee lays down the following rules to be observed in future elections:

1. Official ballot boxes shall be provided. These ballot boxes shall be distributed by the entire election committee after having been inspected by them.

2. The election committee shall obtain from the registrar an official list of the students enrolled in each college as of the date of the election.

3. The sub system of voting shall be adopted. The election committee shall distribute to each college ballots equal in number to the students enrolled as appears on the official list. The ballots shall be numbered in series, and all unused ballots must be returned to the election committee to be checked against the number of votes cast in each college.

4. There shall be no electioneering within fifty feet of any poll.

Six Testify

A group of eight was notified by the committee to appear at the investigation for questioning. Those who testified were Milton Rice, president of the Constitutionalist party; Jerry Mercer, a member of the election board; Russell Patterson, former president of SGA; Stanley Penna, former vice-president of SGA; Prof. John Reeves, a faculty member of the election committee; and Jim Collier, new president of SGA. Given Dixon, candidate in the recent election, and Ben Sublett, former chairman of the Student Standards committee, were asked to appear, but did not testify. The questioning was conducted by Scott Reed, president of the Independent party.

Mercer, who was in charge of the balloting in the engineering college, testified that when no official ballot box was provided for him, he obtained a substitute.

Rice stated that on seeing the substitute box, he asked permission to shake it, but was refused. Becoming suspicious, Rice said, he then kept a close check on the balloting throughout the day. He declared that the questionable ballots numbering 27 to 200 were never on the table during the election. Although Mercer made no answer to this, he said that Rice did not remain at the polls throughout the day.

Ballots Destroyed

Testimony in regard to the questionable ballots was given by Patterson, who stated that he destroyed them inadvertently along with all other records of the election after it was declared invalid.

According to the report of the election board which declared the original voting invalid, the ballots in question were all voted alike, folded alike, and all were marked with the letter "J".

To explain this Mercer testified that he marked all ballots which he distributed with the letter "J". He also said that the student in charge of balloting during the times when he was not at the polls had his permission to use his initial "J" also. He did not give the name of this student.

Professor Reeves in his testimony stated that, except for arranging for candidates' tests, the faculty members of the election committee, had absolutely nothing to do with the conducting of the election.

It was the opinion of several of those who testified that the election was "as honest as any."

Members of the Student Standards committee conducting the investigation were Henry Bramblett, chairman; Mrs. Sarah B. Holmes, dean of women; T. T. Jones, dean of men; Prof. John Horne, Mary Garner, John Kerr, and Scott Reed.

SUMMER TERMS WILL OPEN ON JUNE 11, JULY 23

200 Staff Members To Teach Courses During Sessions

Registration for the summer terms will be held on June 11 and July 23, according to the new summer quarter bulletin and schedule book now available at the registrar's office.

Approximately 200 faculty members will be on the campus during the session to provide instruction in the largest number of courses ever offered in a summer session at the University.

Courses will be offered in anatomy and physiology, ancient languages, anthropology and archaeology, bacteriology, botany, chemistry, economics, English, German language and literature, geology, history, hygiene and public health, journalism, library science, mathematics and astronomy, military science, music, philosophy, physical education, physics, political science, psychology, romance languages, social work, sociology, zoology, agricultural engineering and entomology, animal industry and pathology, farm economics, horticulture, markets and rural finance, home economics, applied mechanics, engineering administration and drawing, civil, electrical, mechanical, metallurgical, and mining engineering, law, administration, agricultural and business education, distributive occupations, educational psychology, elementary education, history of education, home economics, industrial and music education, philosophy of education, and secondary education.

Students will be admitted to the University as their previous training warrants as members of the freshman class, as students of advanced standing, as special students, as graduate students, or as auditors.

Nine quarter hours, equal to six semester hours, per term, or 18 for the quarter, is the normal load. When ability or compelling reasons dictate a heavier load, 21 to 24 quarter hours may be carried.

Fees for resident students enrolling for the full summer quarter will be $35 instead of the $45.50 previously charged. Non-resident students will be charged $55. The (Continued on Page Four)

Dean Attributes Demonstration Of Dorm Men To War Hysteria

Various clad in pajamas, shorts, and bathrobes, approximately 250 residents of the men's dormitories paraded about the campus Thursday night in a spontaneous demonstration, shouting, singing, cheering, and bonfire building.

Starting from the men's halls, about 10 p.m., the groups marched about the campus for more than two hours, stopping at the women's dormitories and at the president's home to stage demonstrations.

According to observers the mob began to gather when all the lights in the dormitories were turned off. When Dean T. T. Jones arrived at the halls with two policemen, most of the crowd had dispersed, but on seeing him arrive, observers said, the crowd gathered again out of curiosity.

Dean Jones said that when he noticed the mental state of the crowd he decided "to let it run its course." He ascribed the entire incident to "just war hysteria." "The basis was the uncertainty, confusion, and disturbed mental processes caused by the impending war," he opined.

The dean said that the responsibility for the disturbance could not be fixed. The boys were upset, he stated, when the lights went out while they were trying to study for final examinations. He reported finding no signs of liquor in the group.

While Dean Jones was talking to the crowd, a automobile accident occurred on Rose Street, attracting some of the men in that direction. After the accident, the dean said, the men amused themselves with stopping cars.

About 12:30 the group reached the women's dormitories. Shaking the front doors of Jewell hall, the boys shouted for the girls to wake up. They then formed a column with four men abreast and marched to the front of Boyd and Patterson halls, stopping on the way to pull down the bottom section of the fire escape. No one attempted to climb the ladders; it was reported.

Inside the dormitories, the girls were described as both frightened and amused. Many were awakened suddenly and thought the campus was being attacked. Miss Margaret Lester, director of residence halls, was in her first floor apartment in Jewell hall when the commotion began. When the boys shook the doors, she ran from her room to the infirmary on the third floor to call the police. Staff members made a hasty but careful inspection of all windows leading to fire escapes to be sure that all were securely fastened.

Miss Lester and Miss Rankin Harris, head resident of Boyd hall, declined to comment on the incident when questioned by a Kernel reporter.

At Maxwell Place, the crowd built a bonfire and according to observers, warned everyone to keep at least 18 inches away from it. Shouts of "Now what do you see from your window?" and "We want a senior edition" were heard from time to time.

President Herman L. Donovan, who returned to Maxwell place about midnight, said he thought "it just some boys out having a good time."

AG CONFERENCES WILL BE HELD

Inflation Control To Be Discussed

Twelve conferences of county farm and home economics and other agricultural workers will be held in Kentucky, beginning Monday, prior to general meetings throughout the state to inform farm people about the government's program to control inflation. It was announced by Dean Thomas P. Cooper.

The purpose of the conferences, according to Dean Cooper, is to instruct extension agents and representatives of other governmental agencies about inflation-control measures, so that they may hold meetings in their communities with the help of local volunteer leaders, Dean Cooper added.

The sites and dates of the conferences include:
Lexington, May 18; Owensboro and Morehead, May 20; Jackson, May 22, and Corbin, May 26.

Five Scholarships Open To Musicians

Five scholarships for musicians who can qualify for the radio studios orchestra are now available. E. G. Sulzer, director of public relations, has announced.

To bring the orchestra up to full strength for the summer term there are places for one pianist, one violinist, on saxophonist, one trombonist and one bass.

Students interested are requested to contact Mr. Sulzer at the Bureau of public relations in the administration building.

Summer Students

Students planning to return to summer school should notify Miss Carrie Bean, postmistress in order to retain the post office boxes which they now hold, according to an announcement received yesterday.

The importance of seniors visiting their mail boxes daily to receive announcements was also stressed.

SOCIETY NAMES DR. GALLAWAY

English Professor Cited For Service

Dr. W. F. Gallaway, associate professor of English, was recognized as the outstanding faculty member of the year at the annual banquet of the Patterson Literary society last week.

Known for his literary work and campus activities, Dr. Gallaway will be honored by having his name engraved on a plaque which hangs in the periodical room of the Union building.

Recent names to the plaque include those of Dr. J. Huntley Dupre of the history department, added in 1939, and of Prof. M. E. Potter, recent head of the physical education department, added in 1941. No name was engraved in 1940 and no name is repeated.

Bob Ammons, Lexington, has been announced as the new president of the organization. Other officers selected were Bob Humphries, Owensboro, vice-president; and Jay Wilson, Mayfield, secretary.

YEARBOOK HAS NOT ARRIVED

Will Be On Sale During This Week

Copies of the 1942 Kentuckian have not arrived although they have been shipped, according to an announcement made late last night by business manager George Nollau. Distribution will begin as soon as the annuals arrive. Students should check at the Union information desk to see if the books have come.

Sales will be made at the Union desk between 8 and 4 on the three days following the arrival of the Kentuckians.

Students who have made deposits should bring their receipts and an additional $3. Other students must pay $4.50. Seniors must present their graduation receipts in order to obtain their copies. No deposits will be returned.

Carrying out the 75th anniversary theme, the cover of bright blue and white has a diamond in the lower left corner with rays spreading across the entire front. At the end of the rays are letters spelling out "Kentuckian." In opposite corners are the dates 1867 and 1942. Several new features, such as a section of pictures showing professors and their hobbies and a calendar of student life, have been added.

Golfers Win 22nd

The undefeated University of Kentucky golf won its 22 consecutive victory Saturday afternoon by downing the Vanderbilt Commodores 15-3.

Allen was low with 73. Other Ky. scores Farris 79; Ramsey 74; and Myers 78.

ALBEN W. BARKLEY

IRVIN S. COBB

will be among the 17 Kentuckians to receive honorary degrees at the 1942 commencement exercises May 29 on Stoll field.

Releases Notice On Curriculum

The following notice was issued last week by the committee on topically related fields of the College of Arts and Sciences.

"Sophomores should now be considering their plans for work in the Upper Division (Junior and Senior years). They are required to elect a major in a department for a certain number of credits, and its Generically Related Field; or, they may choose to elect for concentration some special Topically Related Field. Since this latter opportunity for a different plan of concentration has been neglected by the students, a Faculty committee on Topically Related Fields has been authorized to present this opportunity to the students in the College.

"The Committee will explain the Topically Related Fields to any students who are interested, especially sophomores, at 4:00 p.m. to day, Tuesday, May 19, Room 111, McVey hall. Any students who would like to consider concentration on some fundamental cultural or vocational interest without, necessarily, a department major or limitation of the requirement of credits in a Generically Related Field, are urged to be present."

BARKLEY TO BE MAIN SPEAKER AT GRADUATION

Baccalaureate To To Be Delivered By Bishop Abbott

The largest group of persons ever to receive degrees at a University of Kentucky commencement will gather on Stoll field on Friday night, May 29.

Approximately 575 students, according to an unofficial statement from the registrar's office, will be eligible for degrees. Last year, 450 degrees were presented at the spring exercises and 121 at the February graduation. This year only one commencement is being held.

The commencement procession will form in the driveway behind the Student Union building at 7 p.m. and march to Stoll field.

Graduation activities will begin Thursday, May 28, at 9 a.m. when alumni register at the Union building. Tours of the campus with the Campus Alumni club as hosts will be conducted from 10 until 11 a.m. At noon the annual reunion luncheon will be held.

The baccalaureate procession will form at 2:30 p.m. Thursday on the plaza between the physics and mining buildings and on the driveway leading to the Administration building.

Mob Psychology Is Blamed For Student Demonstration

It is the little things that count in the reaction of a crowd to a given situation. Last Thursday night it was a minor automobile collision on Rose street not far from the men's dormitories. The beginning was an unofficial blackout in the men's residence halls and the end was a demonstration that could be heard for blocks.

It was one of the most perfect examples of mob psychology that has ever occurred, happily not the kind that leads to lynching and destruction.

All was quiet in the dormitories, because examination time is rapidly approaching and there was studying to be done. Then the lights went out. No studying could be accomplished so the men rambled around in the dark halls and finally out into the central court. Two hundred and fifty men cannot congregate without noise, so there was noise, and the neighbors objected.

In fact, they objected so much that they sent for the police. The men began going back into the halls and soon relatively few were left. Then the next thing, infinitesimal in itself but large in the mood of the students, happened. It was the appearance of Dean Jones, flanked by two policemen. Men came pouring out of Breckinridge, Bradley and Kincaid halls like bees from a hive. Everyone was talking when the last straw was placed on the camel's back—the collision.

From then on pure mob spirit was the ruling force. Of one accord, the 250 went to the scene of the accident, nearly scaring the driver out of his wits by their sudden appearance. He drove off rapidly, leaving 250 men milling around in the street with nothing to do.

"Let's stop cars," a strong voice called. They did. But in mob psychology, attention is easily turned and cannot be concentrated on one thing very long. That was shown by the route that the men followed after the car episode.

The next cry was "On to Donovan's" and the mob headed for Maxwell Place. There they began to remember all the things they did not like about some of the present conditions at the University. "We want a senior edition of The Kernel" was one of the many cries.

From Dame Rumor there had come the news that a curfew was to be put into effect on the men's residence halls. And those men were determined that if the power of suggestion would work—curfew would not ring at night.

Then the easily swayed attention was diverted to the residence halls for women, and then they started back to their hive. Passing Maxwell Place, and finding plenty of material that would make an excellent bonfire, they built one. But no one was allowed any closer to it than 18 inches. Some more shouting, and all went home.

There has been a lot of comment among the students that the demonstration was deliberately staged against the administration, some of the renovations that have been made, and some they feared would be made.

From the evidence of witnesses, we cannot agree with such an opinion. It is our belief that the demonstration just built upon itself from that accumulation of little things that continued happening. As it grew in momentum, thoughts of suppressions, real and feared, rose to the surface and found voice in a mob that was ready to speak against them.

Never having lived through a war, we cannot say whether or not it was war hysteria, but that does not ring exactly true to our ears.
Those men were sure they had something to complain about or they would not have done all that they did. They would have returned to their studying as soon as the lights came back on.

SGA Can Suffer From 'Irregularity'

Last week the student standards committee handed down a decision on the Student Government election that was, in reality, no decision at all, because the conflict in the testimony prevented a true judgment. It merely stated that there had been an irregularity at the polls in the engineering college, and made recommendations for future elections.

The person or persons who pulled the silly trick of stuffing the ballot box in the engineering college were definitely more interested in party politics than in the Student Government association.

Any more incidents like that one and the University is likely to come up missing where the SGA is concerned. It hardly seems possible that any student on the campus would be so callous as to do anything that would endanger the life of an organization that means so much to the University.

Students are considered adult people with the intelligence and ability to aid in governing themselves fairly and squarely in their own community. It would be extremely unfair to have anyone judge the whole student body of the University by the action of one or two misfits who have no sense of obligation to their community.

It is also the duty of every student to vote at each election, and to vote only once, because the SGA is for the whole student body, not for the few persons that represent the students.

Goodbye From Now Till September

School is rapidly drawing to a close, and the present editor and her staff are saying goodbye until next September.

We are not a bit sad about parting from the University this summer, because we are all coming back next fall to take up the work where we left off this spring.

To the graduating seniors of the University we wish all the luck that can be had, particularly to those men going into the armed forces.

And speaking of the latter, don't try too hard to impress your superior officers. Paul Durbin, A-1 man in truck a year or two ago, tried too hard and met with disaster.

He and a companion sighted a signal light of an "enemy" during maneuvers. They crept up softly and discovered that he was flagging all vehicles and sending them to the right at the crossroads. Durb and his friends captured the "enemy" and, after putting his away in safe keeping, began to motion everyone to go to the left.

About this time, a lot of tanks from the "enemy" army came along.
Durb motioned them to the left, and after they had gone that way for a while, his companion motioned them left again. Those big, beautiful tanks, the pride of Uncle Sam's army, got mired in a swamp so tightly that it took a week to dig them out. And do you know, Durb and his friend got called down for their hard work, rather than being complimented on their excellent war tactics.

This year there are an unusual amount of honorary degrees being presented at graduation. The University usually limits itself to one or two, but this year there are 17. On the years when a new president is presiding over commencement it is customary to grant more honorary degrees, and also to grant them when the University is celebrating an anniversary. This year the University has both, and the number is six times as great.

Maybe you noticed in the last issue where the students and professors were airing their pet peeves about examinations. May we add for the student side the prof who not only paces the floor but accompanies his hollow footsteps with the jingle of keys, either as he shakes them in his pocket, or whisks them around on a chair.

Now about those examinations themselves, the profs have warned you all year not to cram at the last minute for knowledge that you should have gleaned during the whole semester. But you did not, so

FOLLOW THE ARROW

Columnist Worn Out As Year Ends

VICÉ OF THE PEOPLE BY ROY STEINFORT

I have a headache... I have a draft number ... I have exams... I have my grades... I have a column to write... I have... yes, I might also have that.

Those are just a few of the worries that are flashing through my fatigued mind at the moment—just a few that I nabbed on a running jump.

But here's my solution for a settlement. I can stop the headache with an aspirin. I can join the Navy—that will take care of the Army.
I can steal the dean's report card before Pappy finds it in the mailbox. I can take care of the ... issue in due time.

But this column matter, how am I going to take care of that problem. I haven't been on the campus enough of late to hear the gossip or scandal of our little community.

I haven't been in The Kernel office enough to hear the best jokes. In fact, a fellow just can't hear much with a nose in a book in a torrid section of the library.

I could quote some of my Mother's cooking recipes, but you'd probably burn the house down attempting to cook, and then where would I be.

I could write of the weather, but old Ben Franklin said you're going to have weather, whether or not so that leaves the elements out of my column. Professors could be criticized, but that is hardly diplomatic with exams in the immediate future.

I could tell the jokes that I hear in classes about the botanical gardens, but Officer Kelley might get peeved. The military department would complain if I told what I heard of Buell armory.

Scandal is taboo, so I can't write about the Kappas, the TriDeltis or the PhiDeltis, and who in the hell cares about the Deltis.

There is an incident, however, that I could mention. It took place in an English classroom last week. The prof was on one side of the room asking a student a question.

On the far side, a student, who seldom prepares his lessons, snapped his fingers frantically.
The good natured prof-endured the snapping for several moments and then he turned and very subtly said:

You'd be damned surprised if I ran up and bit you!"

South's Treatment Of Negro Comes In For Second Attack

THE FREE LANCE by BOB WARTH

As the semester's end draws near, progress is being made, however slowly. The number and quality of the educational opportunities for Negroes, though small, is increasing.

While Southern universities will not admit Negroes and whites on an equal basis, sooner or later, it is bound to come. Any educational institution which sets up other than mental criteria for entrance cannot be worthy of the name "university."

The South, we like to believe, has not yet scraped the bottom where such demagogues as Governor Talmadge of Georgia cavort with abandon.

(Editor's Note: The opinion of this column is that of the writer and does not necessarily reflect that of The Kernel. It is being published to acquaint Kentuckians with the feeling of a northerner concerning our treatment of negroes.)

Retailers Get It In The Neck When They Hit OPA Ceiling

"The ceiling will not be broken under any condition," W. S. Grant, representative of the Office of Price Administration assured the business men of Lexington at a meeting held recently in Woodland Auditorium.

Grant explained that the purpose of the OPA was to curb wartime inflation and that it was a vital step toward insuring a strong America for tomorrow.

In the establishment of this branch of public service many serious problems have arisen. Problems of record keeping, price adjustment and larger transactions have been shoved upon the shoulders of the retail merchant who is the key man in the operation of this office.
The amount of work that he is required to do to keep his books straight has greatly been increased.

Much has been learned from the World War I as to the effect of inflation. Because of the boosting of the dollar the many dollars that are intended for national defense don't go into battleships, guns, airplanes and ammunition as it is believed, but into the pockets of the American people who have an excess purchasing power of approximately $17,000,000,000 an almost unbelievable figure.

President Roosevelt has recently put forth a seven point anti-inflation program and hopes to sop up some of this consumers buying power by the purchasing of war bonds and placing ceilings on salaries. In his seven points the President hopes to stabilize farm prices, food prices, put more millions into defense bonds and stamps, ration commodities (sugar, gasoline, etc.), discourage installation and encourage paying off debts, and put emphasis on wage control. There is already talk of putting a $25,000 ceiling on incomes.

But plans for the overall price ceiling will find the going hard unless they are constructed according to the President's seven points.
OPA's blanket ceiling, effective last week, has been reported to be a pain.

This ceiling is based on the prices charged in March of 1942 on absolute necessities. The merchant is required to post ceilings both for the consumer and with OPA. These fig-

KERNEL SPORTS

The Sporting Way

BY BOB ADAIR

Now comes the time for me to say farewell—in a very sporting way, of course... This is possibly the last "Sporting Way" which will ever appear in the Kernel.... (Applause)... But don't rejoice too soon, because if the army doesn't grab me this summer, I'll be back next fall, banging this old beat-up typewriter which adorns the sports desk... But for the present I wish to express my gratitude to those who have helped so much in giving out the dope for me to pass on to you, and also to pay tribute to some of the athletes, many of whom are finishing up their activities for the Big Blue.

I Thank You

First of all, most sincere thanks go to all the coaches and members of the athletic department, all of whom have been very considerate and obliging at all times... Then there is one athlete to whom I wish to pay special tribute—Noah Mullin... There is no doubt in my mind but that this whirlwind speedster would have been an all-American halfback at a larger university... He has also been an outstanding member of the Wildcat track and baseball squads during his collegiate career.

The baseball Cats have missed the services of Mullin since he was declared ineligible in mid-season this year... A couple of Sundays ago, Noah hit a mighty home run with three "ducks on the pond" to break a tie game and give the Versailles independents a victory over Harrodsburg... A few of these licks would have gone well with the Cats on several occasions.

Bouquets

I also wish to commend Coach Rupp and his basketball team... You already know how the Wildcats fought their way through another successful campaign to the South-eastern Conference championship under the Maestro's excellent guidance... And to Carl Staker, Ernie Allen, Jim King, and a host of others we wish to toss a bouquet... And to the Wildcats who have joined the armed forces, Walter White, Bill Portwood, and all the rest, we say, "Keep 'em Flying."

"The Terrible"

I want to add that if there is still anyone on the campus who has never met that corny guy from deep in the heart of Crittenden county, Mr. Harold "The Terrible" Winn, I will personally give that person an introduction if he will please call at the Kernel office this afternoon... If you've never met Windy, you've missed more than half of the fun around this field-housethrough institution... Den dere's dat guy from Newport whut tawks like a Brooklyn baseball fan, "Major" Al Wasser, or just plain "Little Alvin"... Anudder swell gey.

"Fridge" Exits

This year I have had the pleasure of working with some of the finest people and best friends to be found... Such guys as Roy Steinfort, Joe Hodges, Johnny Kurachek, Billy Halfhill, Chuck Woods, Foster Spence, Roy May, Marv Akers, Milt Tico, Jim Mathewson, and Johnny Carrioco will long be remembered... There are numerous others, the boys in the printing shop, professors, and several of those two-faced worrisome things who have been swell... But to name them all would take more space than I'm allowed, so I'll just sign off with that very cold ending used in newspaper writing.—30—

Wildcats Win Over
Eastern Nine, 10-8

By BOB ADAIR

The Kentucky Wildcats pounded out seven singles and one double, good for seven runs in the second inning, and then outlasted the Eastern Teachers College nine to take their second victory of the year from the Maroons, 10-8, on Stoll field last Saturday.

Jim Mathewson went the route for the Cats, giving up 11 hits, striking out eight, and walking three. His mound opponent, Gene Rall, also went all the way, allowing 13 safeties, striking out two, and walking one.

First baseman Milt Tico paced the Kentucky attack with two singles and a mighty four-master over the long right field wall. Coach Billy Black, Randall Hammer, and Mathewson each collected two singles. Reid Babb, Maroon catcher, was knocked unconscious in the sixth inning when Bruce Boehler ran into him after over-running third base on a long triple. Babb was able to finish the game, however.

Hank DeBarry, old-time major league catcher, was on hand to scout the two teams for the New York Giants.

Score by innings:

EASTERN	.....020	132	000	..8
KENTUCKY	.....070	021	00x	..10

Two base hits: Bartlett, Cutchin. Three base hits: Novakowski, Boehler. Home Run: Tico. Stolen bases: Black, Hammer, (2). Double play: Rashnick, Nash, and Novakowski. Left on bases: Eastern, 7. Kentucky, 3. Umpires: Showalter and Cravens.

CATS TO MEET
MARSHALL NINEAkers Or Spence
To Start On Mound

A game with the Marshall College baseball club Thursday afternoon on the Stoll field diamond will bring the Kentucky Wildcats' activities for the season to a close.

The game will mark the conclusion of Student Coach Billy Black's first year at the helm of the Kentucky diamond machine. The Wildcats have played at slightly better than a .500 clip, which isn't bad for a team playing under a new coach and meeting some of the toughest outfields in the South and Middle West.

Marvin Akers or Foster Spence, both of whom have been effective this year, will probably pitch for Kentucky Thursday.

The remainder of the Cat lineup will probably be Milt Tico, 1b; Frank Bauer, 2b; Bruce Boehler, 3b; Phil Cutchin, ss; Coach Black, lf; Randall Hammer, cf; Gus Green, rf; and Charlie Kuhn, p. If Black chooses to direct the team from the bench, which is sometimes the case, Ed Pasco will replace him in the outfield.

Racquetters Lose
To Vandy Squad

Kentucky's racquetters were defeated 8-1 by Vanderbilt University Saturday on the local courts. Omar Ratliff scored the Wildcats' only victory by defeating Kerr, 6-2, 6-1. The results:

Willis (V) defeated Seelbach (K), 6-1, 6-2.
